

TNAI

The Trained Nurses Association of India (TNAI) is a National Professional Association of Nurses established in 1922.

TNAI Purposes:

Upholding the dignity and honor of the nursing professions

Promoting a sense of spirit de corps among all nurses

Enabling members to take counsel together on matters relating to their profession.

The organization of the TNAI makes it possible for all nurses to participate at some level. Beginning with the local unit, which is usually made up of personnel in a specific institution, the level of organization moves to the district, state and national levels. The aims of the TNAI center upon needs of the individual member and problems in the state and national levels. The aims of the TNAI center upon needs of the individual member and problems in the nursing profession as a whole. Such aims include Up-Grading, Development and Standardization of Nursing Education; Improvement of Living and Working Conditions for Nurses in India and Registration for qualified Nurses.
